Judge Moore's Defeat Demonstrates the Fact That Every Southern State Needs A Shadow Government

One more defeat! How many defeats must we suffer before we understand that traditional Southern conservatives cannot hope to achieve a strategic victory by engaging in traditional "American" politics? As explained in Dixie Rising-Rules for Rebels the only way to win a strategic victory is to engage the enemy in irregular political warfare. The only way to produce a fundamental change in American governance is by engaging in irregular political warfare. We must set our sights on the strategic goal of replacing the current supreme Federal government and its ruling elites with home rule enforced by real States' Rights inclusive of the American, Constitutional rights of nullification and secession.

We have witnessed defeats in Southern states such as Mississippi, Louisiana, Virginia and now Alabama. These defeats have one thing in common—the ruling elites of both national political parties were opposed to the popular candidate. Those who enjoy the perks, privileges and power of the status quo will spend as much money as is necessary to defeat a popular non-traditional candidate who is viewed as an opponent of the establishment. They will also dig-up or make-up scandalous allegations against a candidate running against the status quo in Washington, D.C. How do "we the people" of once sovereign states fight against such an enemy? We cannot win using traditional methods—we must use irregular political warfare.

Political defeats, the destruction of Confederate monuments, the continuous anti-South slander from the mainline media—all these things have caused most of our people to assume such bad outcomes are uncontrollable. Psychologists refer to this as "learned helplessness." As pointed out in Dixie Rising-Rules for Rebels "Helplessness induces hopelessness, and history attests that loss of hope and not loss of lives is what decides the issue in war." The Kennedy Twins have provided a strategic plan to use irregular (guerrilla) political warfare against the political status quo. Victory will be assured when each Southern State has an active shadow government. We challenge the leadership of the Southern heritage movement to endorse this plan or put forth their plan for ultimate vindication of the Cause.

The Kennedy Twins enjoyed meeting and greeting folks at the Franklin Tennessee “Civil War” show December 2-3, 2017.

If there is an event scheduled in your area be sure to let us know. During this event we were able to give information about the Son of Confederate Veterans to numerous “Civil War” enthusiasts who wanted to join. We also were able to distribute numerous pro-Southern heritage books. Thanks to our Tennessee friends for coming by to visit.

The Failure to Celebrate Our Victories

A constant exposure to bad news about our Southern heritage will understandably cause people to grow despondent, depressed and actually withdraw from the battle. A major failure is that we never publicly celebrate our victories. By publicly we mean the use of mass media, paid and free, to inform average Southerners about our successes. For example; during the failed effort to gain legislation protecting Confederate monuments in Louisiana an opinion poll was released that showed more than 70% of our people wanted to keep out monuments. The mainline media did its best to keep this away from the public while the SCV did nothing to promote this victory! Working “behind the scene” may accomplish something but without mass support “behind the scene” efforts are ultimately useless. Every time a new flag is raised it should be heralded across the airwaves as well as social media. Why? Because our people need the encouragement. The left knows this we don't.

Are Southerners Living in a Yankee Matrix?

In the pop classic movie, The Matrix, humanity is trapped in a digital matrix in which reality is fictionally produced by those who control the matrix. Humans in the movie seem to prefer the fantasy world of the matrix over the harsh reality of the real world. Unfortunately, many people prefer the comfort of a fantasy world over the harsh reality of the real world. We see this in millennials who rush to embrace the fantasy of Bernie Sanders' socialism rather than face the harsh reality of freedom, individual responsibility and personal accountability in the real world.

Most Southerners also seem to prefer the fantasy world of the “good ole U.S. of A.” over the harsh world of the South as a conquered territory in Lincoln's Federal Empire. Yes, it would be nice if we all lived in the United States as created and handed down to us by the Founding Fathers—the U.S.A. of Thomas Jefferson and James Madison—the U.S.A. consisting of Sovereign States protected by the limitations of the Constitution—a small central government controlled ultimately by we the people of the Sovereign States—But that is a dream world, a fantasy, a type of government that was destroyed by Lincoln, the Republican Party and their crony capitalist allies.

The capitol of the Yankee Matrix is in the swamp called Washington, D.C. It is control by and for the benefit of the ruling elite who enjoy the perks, privileges, and power of their deep state. Reality is harsh; many will elect to remain a slave to the Yankee Matrix rather than wake-up & fight for freedom!

Don't Be A Pacified Southerner

[Reprinted from November's Newsletter]

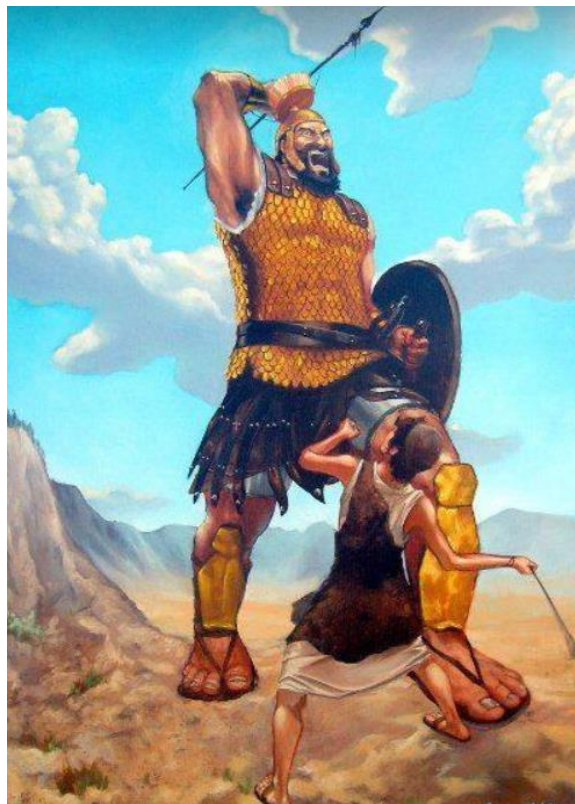

A pacified Southerner is politically conservative, believes in the Constitution, low taxes, limited government, border security, Biblical morality, and an end to no-win wars. Yet, this same individual cannot bring him/herself to admit that the current Federal government does not support any of his basic principles. This individual meekly swears allegiance to “one nation indivisible” even though the very concept of an “indivisible” nation is the very opposite of what the founding fathers had in mind when they seceded from the “indivisible” British Empire and established a Constitutionally limited Republic of Republics—the original and legitimate United States of America. Pacified Southerners refuse to acknowledge the fact that the original Constitution and its Republic died when Lincoln and his co-conspirators invaded and conquered the peaceful, democratically elected nation the Confederate States of America.

Pacified Southerners falsely believe that they are still citizens of America's original Republic. They do not understand that the current supreme Federal government is not a Republic but it is a financial, commercial, and political empire controlled for the benefit of its ruling elite. They do not understand that they are subjects of an empire and citizens of a captive nation—the CSA. Understanding this fact is the first step in seeking and eventually applying the solution.

Shadow governments in every Southern State!

Or continued rule by the elite in Washington D.C.

It's a David and Goliath Battle that Dixie Can Win

The Bible story of David and Goliath can be used as an example of how effective guerrilla warfare can be against a much larger and better equipped enemy. In Dixie Rising-Rules for Rebels we explain how a small group of Southerners, five to ten in each county, could become a revolutionary force that hangs the Federal government on the horns of a dilemma—recognize the Constitutional rights of nullification and secession or be faced with an international appeal for Southern Independence. A Southern Brexit!

Some people think this would be impossible. They seem to think the only way we can fight the ruling elite is by using the traditional political system and “working quietly behind the scene.” Remember that when little David volunteered to fight Goliath the “smart leaders” tried to convince David to wear the Kings armor and fight in the traditional manner. But David refused. He fought and won using non-traditional methods. The same is true today for Dixie!

The Alter of Freedom is Bathed in Southern Blood

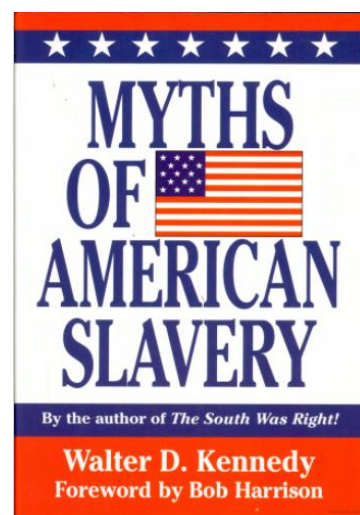

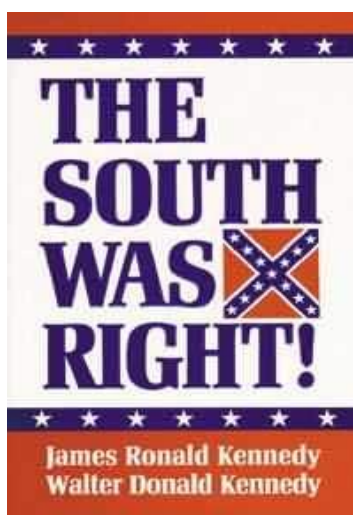

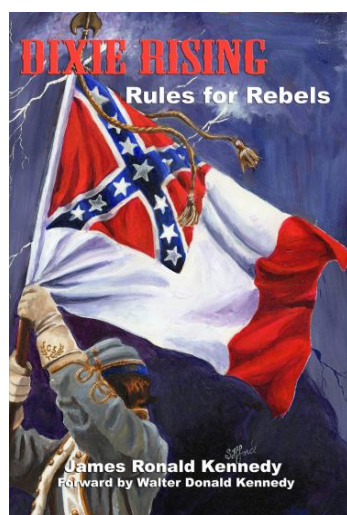

If the total number of Southern deaths caused by Yankee invasion and occupation was normalized to the South's 2010 population, the total number of Southern deaths would be equal to 3.5 million deaths. Compare Southern deaths caused by Yankee invasion to European (and Japanese) death rates caused by war that resulted from German and Japanese invasions during World War 2: Approximately 572,000 French people died, 451,000 English people died, 2.9 million Japanese died, 5 million Poles died, while the United States suffered 419,000 mostly military deaths. If the United States had suffered the same causality rate during the Revolutionary War as the South suffered during the so called "Civil War" instead of suffering 12,000 casualties the Thirteen American Colonies would have lost 94,000 men. If the United States had suffered the same causality rate during World War II as the South suffered during the War for Southern Independence, the American casualties instead of being 419,000 deaths in World War II—would have been approximately 6 million deaths! Very few nations in the world have sacrificed a higher percentage of its population in an effort to maintain its freedom—yet slanderous Yankee propaganda continues to claim that Southerners were fighting for slavery while pacified Southerners are too timid to proudly proclaim that the South was fighting for Freedom while the North was fighting for empire! If we are to regain constitutional government as established by the Founding Fathers, then Southerners must accept the harsh fact that we are not citizens of a Republic but are subjects of the current Yankee Empire. The Republic of Sovereign States—the United States of America—no longer exists! Southerners are in fact citizens of a captive nation—the Confederate States of America—and subjects of the globalists Yankee Empire. Ignoring current political reality will only assure more traditional political defeats for those who love the traditional, conservative, Bible-Belt South.

The "Civil War" Was Fought Over Freedom

According to contemporary American intellectuals, academics, and talking heads (Yankees or self-hating Southerners) the "Civil War" was fought over slavery. The popular concept of the War is that the virtuous North fought to remove the sin of slavery while the evil South fought to maintain slavery. The truth is that the South was fighting for its freedom while the North was fighting to maintain its ability to freely extract Southern resources and thereby create a commercial, industrial, financial and military empire. Because the Post-war South willingly accepted its status as a conquered and pacified nation, it has never been able to offer an effective challenge to the Northern narrative about the so call "Civil War." Generations of pacified Southerners have allowed the Northern narrative to stand. At best pacified Southerners have only tried to convince themselves that their ancestors "fought for what they thought was right." Thus, slavery was allowed to become the universal excuse for Yankee invasion, conquest and occupation of the once free and prosperous people of Dixie. Today, slavery has become the leftwing excuse for the destruction of what is left of the Constitution. After all, if monuments to Confederate heroes must go because of their connection with slavery, then certainly the Constitution must go! The left now argues that the Constitution protected the nefarious African slave trade; the Constitution contained the three fifths clause that counted blacks as only worth 3/5s of whites; and the Constitution protected slavery in America; therefore, it must be replaced with a new neo-Marxist social contract—a neo-socialist society in which the Federal government will enforce equality of outcome. By failing to vindicate the cause of Southern freedom, pacified Southerners have provided the left with its most effective weapon "slavery" to use against not only the traditional South but all of traditional America.

Why the Apathy?

After viewing the results of the election in Alabama, a friend asked why so many Southerners were apathetic about the loss of our Southern heritage and basic conservative values. The answer is simple—their apathy is actually the result of what psychologists call “learned helplessness.” For example; if you put a rat in a box with an electrical grid on the floor and just prior to administering a painful but not fatal shock you ring a bell. The next time you ring the bell the rat will scurry about trying to avoid the pain but to no avail. If you keep ringing the bell and administering the shock the rat will soon stop scurrying about when you ring the bell and just stand still, trembling while awaiting the expected pain that the poor creature now knows it cannot avoid—despite its best efforts. The rat is not apathetic about the pain but experience has taught him that the pain is unavoidable—it has learned that it is helpless under the circumstances. Southern apathy is a state of indifference caused by a sense of helplessness when faced with the power of the current progressive, political status quo. The failure of Southern leadership to establish a strategic plan to achieve ultimate vindication for the Cause is the major factor for Southern apathy. We spend a lot of time talking to each other but very little publicly promoting the truth about the War: The South was fighting for Freedom—the North was fighting for empire. We have failed to give Southerners reasons to hope for ultimate victory. As a result, we have become trembling rats helplessly awaiting the next shock to be administered by the ruling elite.
